When Services Are Considered Not Medically Necessary

Based on review of available data, the Company considers the use of non-formulary drugs that do NOT have a dedicated medical policy AND/OR non-formulary drugs that may be listed in a step therapy medical policy when the patient selection criteria for the requested drug are NOT met to be not medically necessary.*

Background/Overview

This policy supports the formulary exception process and the non-formulary drug review process for the BCBSLA closed formulary and should be utilized for those drugs without a dedicated medical policy AND/OR those non-formulary drugs that may be listed in a step therapy medical policy.

Rationale/Source

The patient selection criteria presented in this policy takes into consideration the use of formulary alternatives. Based on a review of the available data, there is no advantage of using non-formulary drugs over the available formulary drugs on the closed formulary. The closed formulary is a collection of drugs that are equally as effective, yet offer a more economical option than non-formulary drugs.

*Medically Necessary (or “Medical Necessity”) - Health care services, treatment, procedures, equipment, drugs, devices, items or supplies that a Provider, exercising prudent clinical judgment, would provide to a patient for the purpose of preventing, evaluating, diagnosing or treating an illness, injury, disease or its symptoms, and that are:

- A. In accordance with nationally accepted standards of medical practice;
- B. Clinically appropriate, in terms of type, frequency, extent, level of care, site and duration, and considered effective for the patient's illness, injury or disease; and
- C. Not primarily for the personal comfort or convenience of the patient, physician or other health care provider, and not more costly than an alternative service or sequence of services at least as likely to produce equivalent therapeutic or diagnostic results as to the diagnosis or treatment of that patient's illness, injury or disease.

For these purposes, “nationally accepted standards of medical practice” means standards that are based on credible scientific evidence published in peer-reviewed medical literature generally recognized by the relevant medical community, Physician Specialty Society recommendations and the views of Physicians practicing in relevant clinical areas and any other relevant factors.
